

Home / 600,000 Facebook Accounts Compromised DAILY

RECENT TWEETS

600,000 FACEBOOK ACCOUNTS COMPROMISED DAILY

October 29, 2011 · by Robert Leshner · in Public Service Announcement · Edit

From ReadWriteWeb, 600,000 Facebook Accounts are Compromised Daily.

You have an important decision when establishing your privacy settings on Facebook; do you make everything public, or do you limit it to your friends.

The less information you make public, the safer you are. The more information you allow to be made public, the easier it is for the world to know your private and sensitive information.

Sadly, 600,000 Facebook accounts PER DAY are compromised by phishing, stolen passwords, and hacking. The information that you keep private may still find its way onto the web. And even if YOU are secure, your friends might not be. A hacker can easily compromise a friend's account, and steal all of your personal information.

When in doubt, assume everything you put on Facebook is visible to the entire world.

-Robert

Tags: facebook privacy

Leave a Reply

Logged in as Samantha Leland. Log out →

Post Comment →

← Visa and MasterCard hate you

How One Missing `var` Ruined our Launch

